

New Zealand Youth Delegation to Rio+20

A group of four students from across New Zealand, including Injy Johnstone from Kaikorai Valley College, was selected to attend the New Zealand Youth Delegation to Rio+20 Conference held in Rio de Janeiro.

Students have attended workshop sessions, speaking and listening to youth from all over the world, and shared ideas and techniques of how to be a leader of sustainable development. They have also presented ‘electives’ sharing ideas from their particular country. Injy presented work being done at Kaikorai Valley College with Enviroshools and highlighted the recent successful “No Power Day” – a sustainability focused project for the school. Students will also take ideas from each other’s reports, workshops, and discussions about global consumerism, unsustainable and sustainable practices and adapt them for their own countries to increase local awareness of sustainable development.

Do I really need this item?

Why is it necessary to buy this?

Am I able to find something more eco-friendly... or recyclable?

To read more about Injy and her colleagues’ work check out their blog spot <http://nzyouthrioplus20.wordpress.com/>